

1. Spades, Hearts, Clubs or Diamonds. Which one are you and why? (150 words max)

Diamond, because for me it stands for something like raw diamond, raw talent, vassals - people in subordinate position to others but know how to turn the table. On both professional and personal level, I started from below the starting point but it didn't make me a less motivating person but rather vice versa. I earn my bones through hard work and I adapt quickly to the change.

2. If you were a brother of Alpha Kappa Psi, how would you contribute professionally to the Brotherhood?

I'm majoring in Business Analytics & IT and I'm very passionate about the topic of Women in tech. I would love to host/co-host workshop sharing my working experience and technical skills to brothers who share the same interests. I also have my own non-profit organization, which is also in the field of technology and women empowerment. We lead the first all-women hackathon in our country and are expanding. Since last year I've realized there are many young professionals interested in leading their own hackathon, whether it's on high school level, college level or regional level. If any brother is into hackathon as much as I am, I am happy to share my experience and available resources on that as well.

Other than that I've participated in different consulting cases and projects. Tech consulting is a field that I hope to dive deeper and would love to share it with other brothers.

3. Out of all the applicants, what do you think makes you unique? Why do you believe you should be extended a bid? (200 words max)

I think my diverse experience and entrepreneurial mindset are two things that make me unique. I was born and raised in Vietnam. I had experience working in Europe (Paris, France), Asia (China, Vietnam) and the US. I know I can bring different perspectives on the table. I founded my first startup when I was in my freshman year and I founded my non-profit organization in my late sophomore year. Considering myself an ambitious and driven person, I put effort and enthusiasm in things that I do or people that I chose to be with. Currently I'm a junior and it's pretty busy around, meaning that I'm very selective about choosing what I want to commit myself with. Throughout the even I met with different brothers and I find them very professionally driven and supportive and that's why I decide to rush.

My determination can also be seen in my personal life, ex: I trekked over 130 miles between 2 cities in China. I should be extended a bid because I want other brothers to get to know me more not only on professional level but also on personal level.
