No

As a freshman I am only involved in a couple of extracurricular activities. I am part of LASO, E-Tower, the public speaking club, and the GIVE tower. Additionally I also take part in an ultimate Frisbee intramural team and plan to play tennis club.

3. How will you contribute to the fraternity? (max 300 words)

I believe that I have several things to contribute to this fraternity. I am a person that tends to look for the greater good rather than an individual benefit. The fact that there is a union between brothers is one of the reasons that I could use this mentality. Professionally, I would say that I am a really work oriented person; I tend to keep my work in order and I have a really good sense of time management and organization. I am a person that puts all my effort in whatever I am doing, no matter how many other things I have on my plate, also I tend to prioritize certain things in order to accomplish everything that I want. I am a person that “walks the talk,” if I say I am going to something I do it, no matter how hard or how much effort I have to put on it . I additionally, are a reliable person when it comes to doing a certain task. Also I tend to push myself to do things that are out of my comfort zone, such as meeting new people due that I am a shy person. That has made me be harsher on myself which has make a perfectionist in everything I do, no matter is its school work or a sport. On the not professional side, I tend to give a positive energy when I am with groups of people; I am a person that tries to see the bright side to every situation rather than thinking there is no way out. I have always been a team player rather than working by myself since I tend to bring something to the people I work with.

4. How do you measure success? (max 300 words)

Societies have created this idea that success is standard for all individuals involved in a community. Success is modern term that has been molded to each individual or situation. I do not think that success is measured by the amount of things someone does or can manage or even the amount of profit that one obtains. I think that success is measured differently per individual. Usually people define success as achieving an aim or gaining profit; however everyone has a different way of measuring success. It takes courage to adventure yourself in a new experience when trying to achieve success; that’s why I believe that revealing this courage is another way to measure success. Sometimes success does not even have to be about a great achievement, success can be measured in small amounts. What I mean with this is that sometimes just taking the first step is a sign of success and by reaching those small goals, at the end by summing these triumphs one will have obtained a great achievement. There is no right definition of success or right way to measure accomplishments, but rather than how happy something makes the individual through the process of obtaining goals. Finally what I can assure is that success is dependent of an individual and it is measured by his / her standards, not by a societal complex that has been created by communities. In my eyes success is also not measure by accomplishment but rather by gaining experience or knowledge through the process of a task. In my life I measure success regarding how happy I am, not only with the outcome of a situation, but rather if the whole process of reaching my goal was an adventure and if I was taken out of my comfort zone in order to learn something.

5. What previous experience from your past makes you feel like you relate to AKPsi?

I would say that the experience that made me feel related to AKPsi was during high school. During high school I was part of the club FBLA (Future Business Leaders of America) which made me realize the passion I have for business. I was secretary of this club and it was not only the business related part that I loved, but also the fact that the whole board had each other's backs. It was that feeling of family or brother hood that related me to AKPsi in addition to the professional side of it. This club used to be my safe space and I hope that AKPsi will occupy that space in the future. Since this club was one of the greatest parts of my life, not only professionally but also socially I believe that AKPsi would have the same impact in my life. This club pushed me to get out of my comfort zone and gave a great amount of skills that I possess today, therefore I feel the AKPsi would push me even farther in order to form me as a person. When I heard of AKPsi all I could think about was this high school club that became a great part of my life and how much I loved it. I think that AKPsi can fulfill that space for me.
