1. Have you previously rushed Alpha Kappa Psi? (Yes/No)

No.

2. What other organizations/extracurriculars are you a part of?

Babson Players' Production of Witness for the Prosecution.

3. How will you contribute to the fraternity? (max 300 words)

I always believe that a significant part of doing business is about making mutually beneficial connections and thus creating shared value. AKPsi is a huge organization, but due to location limitation, brothers at different schools do not always have the chance to know each other. If I have the chance to join AKPsi, I would love to dedicate my time in organizing more events both online and offline on networking with other fraternities at different schools. In this way AKPsi further explores its human resources and enables us Babson students to expand our eyes through knowing more people from different places. For example, we can hold AKPsi conferences for all the brothers from schools in NY, BOS and discuss about certain current business issues or better ways to run the great organization and make the most of it.

4. How do you measure success? (max 300 words)

The way I measure success is how far I can go beyond my comfort zone. I've always enjoyed the delight of looking back on how far I have gone from the original point. Take myself as an example. When I was in middle school, I used to fear public speaking a lot. I felt panic inside every time I talked in front of a group of people, even if they were my close friends. However, I knew that to be a great leader meant to speak in public most of the time, and I had always wanted to be a successful leader. Since then, I started to change. I raised hands frequently in class, pushed myself to do more presentations, and signed up for activities that enabled me to speak more in front of people, Student Union Election, for example. At the end of the day, I would recall how many times I had challenged myself on that day, and if it was not enough, I would push myself harder on practicing public speaking. As time went by, I started to enjoy expressing my opinions in front of others, and furthermore, I gained more courage to challenge myself in every other aspect. Looking back, I have succeeded, after all the time feeling unsecured.

5. What previous experience from your past makes you feel like you relate to AKPsi?

People familiar with China's education system will know that most Chinese high school students only focus on achieving satisfying Gaokao results (college entrance examination achievement) due to the fact that China's colleges, most of the time, only look at students' academic achievements. No social or hobbies besides some talents that strengthen Gaokao results are encouraged. In such an environment, I felt like some parts of me were suppressed, because not only did I love learning new things, no matter it was mechanics, Chinese poetry or skateboard, and I were also largely interested in building relationships with others and attending different social events. The first info session of AKPsi I attended made me realize every aspect of me was encouraged and embraced there, which was also the first time I felt deeply connected to each and every one at a place. I believe that AKPsi is the place where I can explore my potential to the maximum extend.
