1. Have you previously rushed Alpha Kappa Psi? (Yes/No)

No

2. What other organizations/extracurriculars are you a part of?

I am currently not involved in any clubs, but hope to become active in the Chinese Students and Scholars Association, Babson Outdoor Association, and Sustainability Club.

3. How will you contribute to the fraternity? (max 300 words)

I aspire to be a successful entrepreneur, and since AKPsi is a fairly new fraternity on campus, it closely resembles that of a startup. I want to help and be a part of AKPsi's growth. I have experience with three different startup businesses: Pinkstory, MatchWear, and Begintoheal. These three businesses has allowed me to build my leadership, communication, organization and teamwork skills. I want to commit and am willing to invest my time into AKPsi. I would like to potentially become a part of the e-board in AKPsi, specifically marketing. Over the summer, I had a marketing internship with PippaandJulie and was responsible for building our social media platforms. I understand the basics of photoshop and can make posters/banners, which can be beneficial if AKPsi ever needed one. If I were given the chance to join AKPsi, I will always try my best to contribute the most I can.

4. How do you measure success? (max 300 words)

To me, you have succeeded if you are happy. Success does not mean anything if you yourself aren't happy with the results. If your pocket is full of money, but your heart is still empty, you have not succeeded. If your group project receives a failing grade, but together as a group you all learned a valuable lesson, then you all still succeeded. If your start up fails, but you bring yourself back together and refuse to give up, then you still succeeded. In my eyes, learning from your mistakes is a great example of success. Even in times of failure, I believe that everyone can redeem themselves by putting in the effort to better improve their mental and physical self. Getting over a failure is hard, and just by having the mindset that you can still do it, then I believe you have already succeeded in something that not everyone has. No matter how small the level of success is, it still counts. And each and every small success builds up into something greater.

5. What previous experience from your past makes you feel like you relate to AKPsi?

At my previous college, I was the Freshmen Representative and Public Relations officer for a professional organization called Society of Asian Scientists and Engineers. SASE was more than just an extracurricular activity to me. SASE was and will always be my family. Even though I unable to participate in this organization, I still talk to the members and am a mentor for a current RPI freshmen. As a transfer student, it was a little hard adjusting to a completely new environment and community of people. Similarly, freshmen year at RPI was the same way. It was my first time being so far away from home, family and friends. I tried out so many different clubs and organizations, but only SASE stood out to me. After joining e-board, I began to build a greater connection with the members and the organization itself. SASE became my second home. My second family that allowed me to build great relationships with so many different unique individuals. A second home that gave me warmth and people to trust and depend on. And similarly, AKPsi has provided me with that same connection and if I was given the chance to join, I have confidence that AKPsi will be my potential new family.
