3. How will you contribute to the fraternity? (max 300 words)

When people describe me, a recurring trait about me that people love to mention is my perfect balance of unique and irresistible humor, but also my time-appropriate professionalism.

Personally, I think this is one of the few sides of me that can serve exactly to what Alpha Kappa Psi aims to be – I know when to be proper, but also know when to have fun. Having experience of leadership and being a follower, I have experienced both ends of the deal and worked hard to fulfill my duties in the past. Thus, as a member of this fraternity, I will drive myself and others to prosper as a brotherhood.

4. How do you measure success? (max 300 words)

Before I mention how I measure success, I never give myself the burden of succeeding before I undertake a task. Success to me isn't a must. That said, I measure my success in a way that I evaluate my input compared to the output. My parents raised me in a way that taught me how, whatever you put into something, is exactly how much you get out of it – and I have come to firmly adopt that philosophy. In that way, I know exactly when I don't put in my 100%, I will never get 100% out of it. Although I make my measurement of success rather calculable, it is not. Nevertheless that is the beauty and satisfaction that I get out of my success.

5. What previous experience from your past makes you feel like you relate to AKPsi?

I was a member of my soccer team since my sophomore year in high school. As typical as this may sound, being on a team that values teamwork over success taught me exactly how to inspire brotherhood. As a team, we were always a successful team. But that success was not born through individual talent, but it was born through our companionship and camaraderie. Hence, this resonating memory in my life, in a sense, reflects upon those who I see in AKPSI. With the right brotherhood, I genuinely believe that I can accomplish what I want to be as a businessperson and a companion.
