1. Have you previously rushed Alpha Kappa Psi? (Yes/No)

No

2. What other organizations/extracurriculars are you a part of?

Currently, I am a member and resident of the Babson Political Association. I am also on the Babson CODE E-board as the VP of Marketing. Finally, I am one of the leaders of Students Against Gravity, which is the improv troupe on campus.

3. How will you contribute to the fraternity? (max 300 words)

Creativity and determination are two words that describe me. If accepted in the Alpha Kappa Psi fraternity, I will contribute these two characteristics to the fraternity and its growing efforts. I will always put my best foot forward in whatever I do, whether that be attending events, helping out a brother, or simply just being present. While doing this, I will try my best to put a smile on everyone's face. As a leader of Babson's improv troupe, Student's Against Gravity, I value taking a break from the pressures of Babson, and having fun. I will contribute a positive attitude as well as fun events that will allow brothers to bond and laugh over the everyday struggles of Babson.

4. How do you measure success? (max 300 words)

Success is a term that can be defined with a variety of different answers. For me, success is not necessarily the accomplishment of a goal or task, but rather the state of mind that a person is in at the end of a process. It is the smaller accomplishments that define success. For example, if a person fails an assignment, yet he or she learned something new and is proud of what was put forward, then the assignment was still somewhat successful. At the end of the process, that person was proud and has learned something new, therefore they were successful.

5. What previous experience from your past makes you feel like you relate to AKPsi?

Exactly four years ago, during my sophomore year in high school, a senior left me behind an improv club with four members, no funds, and the encouraging words to "don't screw it up." With zero experience of how to run a club, I started on the impossible mission to make the improv club known amongst an entire school of award winning athletics. With the help of the other members, a faculty advisor, and the gullibility of theater kids, I was able to make four people turn into into 8 and eventually 20, creating an group of people who would work together and support each other. After leaving this club behind two years ago, I left behind an organization that performs twice a semester where students line up at the door of shows. Although it is well established on campus, the improv organization still has miles to go before it reaches success. Alpha Kappa Psi has become a growing organization on campus since its new founding a few years ago, and I relate to this through my experiences in high school. Growth is not necessarily about becoming the best the fastest, but rather creating an environment where you and other can success around you. That is what I started to create with improv in high school, and that is what AKPsi created when the founding class started years ago. Alpha Kappa Psi is not just the "other" professional fraternity on campus, but it is the growing professional fraternity on campus.
